The Crusaders Are Risking Their Investments in Mozambique

Whoever follows the coverage of various media outlets to the news of the Khilafah battles against the Crusader Mozambican army, finds that the focus is almost exclusively on the importance of the locations of these battles, which are near the huge gas fields in which the Crusader oil companies invested billions of dollars. Other than that fact, nothing else is important to the kafir countries or to their media.

This region, which was and still is under the influence of the Crusader state of Portugal, from which it left half a century ago, is now governed by a gang of communist atheists. There is nothing of interest to the Crusaders other than their large reserves of various underground wealth, in which investment is shared by American, French and South African companies, and Russian and Chinese companies aspire to find a foothold for themselves as well.

For centuries, the Crusaders and the communist atheists inflicted on the Muslim in those lands the worst torture, and they forced a large portion of them to abandon their religion. That criminality did not stop even after the end of the Portuguese rule and the Communist gang seized power. Just like Muslims everywhere, the crimes of the kuffar in Mozambique were forgotten; until a few of the mujahidin announced their joining the Jama'ah of Muslims, and raised the banner of the Islamic State in those areas. The world saw the joy of the people there with the destruction caused by the mujahidin to the enemies of Islam. Only then did the Crusaders realize that the continuation of the Communist government's crimes against Muslims had opened the door to revenge of the Khilafah soldiers against the Crusader Mozambican army and its kafir and murtadd allies.

Especially because it is part of the policy of this cowardly army that after every defeat it receives by the hands of Khilafah soldiers, it increases its aggression against the people in the area in which it is defeated, hoping to restore an alleged prestige that it tries to impose on the oppressed with oppression and terrorism. This matter will lead to an increase in the Muslim's joining to the soldiers of the Islamic State. Also, these kafir states seek to keep the war with Khilafah soldiers only within the borders of Mozambique, especially as their areas of spread and operations are close to the borders of Tanzania.

After the failure of this dying army in achieving its promises to the Americans and the French; to achieve victory over the Khilafah soldiers, and its suffering of heavy losses in that war, it started to use of the help of the Russian Crusader intelligence, working under the cover of the Wagner Company, which was also destroyed by the Khilafah soldiers and forced to take their name out of the battle that exposed the size of their great losses therein. Thus, the kafir Mozambican government switched to ask for support and backing from neighboring and faraway Crusader states.

Before, the Crusader states in Europe and America decided to send their forces there and made that region a new arena for the war against the Islamic State, and the difficulties similar to what they face in its endless war in West Africa. Today, they seek to have the "South African" government and its army involved in leading the war there, for its proximity and strong ties with the Mozambican government. However, "South Africa" has enough internal problems to push it towards avoiding getting involved in this war that will place it in major financial, military and security trouble. This involvement might result in the hurrying of the Islamic State soldiers to open a fighting front inside its borders, by Allah's permission.

The support of the alliance of the "South African Countries" for the Mozambican army was not the level it wanted. It has so far been limited to a few trained soldiers, equipped with a small number of weapons, because some of these countries are already suffering from internal conflicts or were involved in the Somalian war that bled them for long. Or, it is afraid of long-term involvement in this battlefield, like other African armies involved in the war on the Islamic State, such as Cameroon, Nigeria, Chad, Niger, Benin, Mali, Burkina Faso and the Congo. Also, the potential for the armies of Mauritania, Algeria, and Ivory Coast as well to be involved in it, which constitutes a terrifying image for any army thinking of drowning itself in a long war in Mozambique.

The result of all of this is that the Crusaders today are confused. They fear that their great intervention in this war will lead to the joining of more Muslims in Mozambique and its vicinity to the Khilafah soldiers, especially since the aggression against Islam and its people in all countries of the region is big and old. Likewise, they also fear that this will lead to the widening of the burning fire of jihad, which threatens to burn shirk and mushrikin in this important region to them, because of its wealth and potentials.

And if the Crusaders reckon that, with their support for the kafir government in Mozambique, they will protect their investments and guarantee their continued looting of the region's wealth, then they are delusional. By Allah's permission, conditions will soon stabilize for the Khilafah soldiers, sooner or later. They enjoy progress and victory, while their enemy face setbacks, and all praise is due to Allah. And if the Crusaders continue their mobilization of forces against the Islamic State as well as their direct interference in the war there, for which some of them call, that will only lead to what they do not desire! And may Allah aid those who support Him. Allah is strong and dear. And Allah will certainly aid those who aid his cause; for verily Allah is full of Strength, Exalted in Might.
